You are a go-getter who is looking for something new. You have a flexible schedule and would love to travel and meet new people.

Use your dynamic personality to make a difference. The data we collect is shared with many of the nation's largest manufacturers and service providers with the goal to positively impact the products and services YOU and the respondent use every day. This includes the newspapers and magazines you read, the TV you watch, the radio you listen to, and the products you buy. The American Institute of Consumer Studies has been gathering consumer opinions for over 20 years by personally interviewing people in more than 25,000 households all across America each year. We're looking for high-energy candidates to help gather this information as Field Interviewers. Interested?
